Subject: RE: Reduction of Styrofoam use
Attachments: Green To Go Ordinance.docx

Sorry it's taken a bit, Dee Dee has been out and she's the lead on this one.

This website has a summary of all the local governments that have polystyrene bans:

<http://www.surfrider.org/pages/polystyrene-ordinances>

65 in California, 9 in Florida, 16 in MA, 1 in NJ, 3 in NY, 1 in OR, 1 in TX, 3 in WA, 1 in DC, and 2 in ME, including a statewide ban on styrofoam at state functions.

Many of the Florida muni's are comparable or smaller in size to us: Bal Harbour (2,600), Bay Harbor Islands (5,800), Surfside (5,900), North Bay Village (7,400), Key Biscayne (12,832), Coral Gables (49,600).

Some are more restrictive than others, some only address beaches and local parks, some take on only restaurants, some take on all stores, restaurants and beaches and city events.

Attached is the most updated copy of the draft ordinance.

The Sustainability Board will be reviewing it next week, June 30th, at 5:30pm at Old City Hall on Greene Street.

We welcome your suggestions and support!
