

Old Business

October 2012

1. Hindu Request: Staff let Bonnie and Josh Rowan; owners of the Schooner Hindu know that a large freestanding sign has been approved for the Dry Tortugas Museum. After learning about the sign they rescinded their request to put an old pickup truck on the dock as an attraction.
2. Florida Power Boat Club: Staff worked with Stu Jones regarding reservations for the Florida Power Boat Club. However at the last minute everything fell apart as usual. There was a flurry of last minute faxes from the Power Boat club which created rafting situations after Mr. Jones had told everyone they wouldn't have to raft. There were also several boats that showed up with no reservations that were told by Mr. Jones to just go to Key West Bight Marina and they would find them a slip. It was chaos at 4pm when they all showed up and staff did it's best to sort it out but there were a lot of unhappy people.

Staff informed everyone that stayed with us that for the event next year they would have to book direct with the marina if they wanted a slip. Everyone was happy with that and thanked us for the change. Staff will not accept a deposit from the Florida Power Boat Club for next year's event. Instead the club members can book directly with the marina, in fact a lot of them made reservations for next year before they left the marina.
