That kind of immediate impact speaks volumes. I believe they've earned the opportunity to show what they can accomplish with the full weight of a three-year contract.

TAB 4 – PROJECT APPROACH

UNDERSTANDING THE CITY’S NEEDS

Our advocacy strategy for the City of Key West is built on proactive engagement, targeted relationship development, and continuous monitoring of legislative and funding opportunities. Over the past six months, we have already begun advancing Key West’s priorities, and this proposal formalizes a long-term strategy rooted in sustained presence and coordinated state and federal advocacy.

Key West has distinct needs shaped by its geography, tourism-based economy, and environmental vulnerability including storm recovery, affordable and workforce housing, infrastructure modernization, and coastal resiliency. Our approach begins with a clear prioritization of the City’s objectives, followed by a focused outreach plan to key legislators, agency leaders, committee staff, and federal stakeholders who influence funding, permitting, and regulatory decisions affecting Key West.

We will maintain continuous communication with state and federal decision makers, ensuring the City’s priorities remain visible throughout the year, not only during legislative sessions or grant cycles. By positioning Key West as a proactive partner rather than a reactive requester, we strengthen credibility and increase access to competitive funding streams and policy support.

Our role is to serve as a dedicated strategic representative for Key West, coordinating legislative advocacy, agency engagement, funding pursuit, and stakeholder alignment to deliver tangible results and measurable progress for the City’s long-term needs and future planning.

Legislative Tracking, Analysis, and Strategic Advocacy

Bills, resolutions, and agency actions that affect municipalities are monitored daily. Real time analysis and clear recommendations allow City leaders to act decisively. Advocacy is directed to the right decision makers, including committee members, agency officials, and legislative staff, through testimony, position papers, and coalition building.

Consultation Services

We can continue to meet with the City Commission and staff as needed and participate in annual workshops to refine legislative priorities. Our team identifies and prioritizes federal and state grant opportunities, coordinates agency meetings, and secures letters of support to strengthen applications. Comprehensive legislative counsel is provided, relationships with officials in the Florida Legislature, U.S. Congress, and executive agencies are maintained, and City personnel receive guidance for appearances before government officials. Proposed changes to formulas, allocations, or regulations are tracked closely, and timelines are developed for initiatives seeking appropriations or legislative support.

Development of a City Legislative Platform and Funding Priorities

Annual workshops with the Commission, Manager’s Office, and Attorney provide the opportunity to refine Key West’s legislative platform. Priorities in housing, infrastructure, and resilience are translated into a legislative package that guides advocacy throughout the session. This process builds directly on the work already underway and ensures the City speaks with one clear voice.

Coordination with City Commission, Manager's Office, and Key Departments

Strong coordination ensures departmental priorities such as public works, housing, and emergency management are integrated into the broader agenda. Existing relationships with staff and elected officials allow this coordination to continue seamlessly, keeping stakeholders aligned and informed.

Communications and Reporting Protocols

Transparency and accountability remain central to the approach. Weekly calendars of relevant events and issues are provided during session. At the conclusion of each session, a closing report is submitted within one week, followed by a comprehensive final report within 60 days. Outside of session, periodic updates are provided on interim committee meetings, federal rulemaking, and anticipated legislation. Each year concludes with an accomplishments report, presented in person to the City Commission.

Interaction with Congressional and Legislative Staff, Agency Officials, and Associations

Relationships with legislators, staff, and agency officials in Tallahassee and Washington open doors and build support for Key West's priorities. Engagement with the Florida League of Cities, National League of Cities, and other associations amplifies the City's voice through coalition advocacy.

Approaches to Securing State and Federal Appropriations, Grants, and Favorable Policy Outcomes

Competitive grant opportunities and appropriation requests are identified early. Drafting appropriation requests, coordinating letters of support, and lobbying committee members before and during hearings position Key West for success. Current advocacy efforts in resilience and housing will continue, ensuring momentum carries forward into the next cycle.
