CITY OF KEY WEST ART IN PUBLIC PLACES PROGRAM

Key West Art in Public Places (AIPP) is a City Commission appointed Board responsible for the ordinance (City Code Section 2-487) that mandates that 1% of the costs of qualifying public and private construction and renovation projects be set aside for the acquisition, administration, commission, installation and maintenance of artwork to be placed on the site of said construction or deposited to the AIPP Community Fund 110 in lieu of art. Qualifying projects include: New construction projects that qualify as a major development plan (MDP) and exceed $500,000.00 in cost; renovation projects that qualify as a major development plan and exceed $100,000.00 in cost; and any qualifying governmental agency-owned project within Key West that requires a building permit. The Key West AIPP Program is administered through the AIPP Administrator in the City of Key West Planning Department, the Florida Keys Council of the Arts, and the AIPP Board.

PROJECT BUDGET

The maximum art budget amount, inclusive of all costs for artists including installation, is $15,000 for any and all commissions for this project. The selected artist(s) is expected to work with the AIPP Board and the City project management team.

PROJECT HISTORY AND SITE DESCRIPTION

Douglass Gym is a rebuilt recreation and community center situated in the designated historic district (Old Town) on the island of Key West. The Florida Keys, a 43 island archipelago extends 210 miles from the Southeast coast of Florida, and separates the Gulf of Mexico from the Atlantic Ocean. The first Frederick Douglass School opened in 1870 for African students in the segregated Monroe County School System. The school was located at the corner of Fleming and Thomas Streets behind the Monroe County Courthouse. As enrollment increased, the school moved first to Emma Street and in 1925 to a new building on Thomas Street near Southard Street. With integration of the Monroe County School system in 1965, Douglass School was closed as the school district began the integration of all students. The facility was used briefly by the Community College, and also was the Glynn Archer Junior High. In 1970, it became Douglass Elementary School until 1977, when it closed for a final time. The school was named for Fredrick Douglass, one of America's most distinguished African-American orators and abolitionist of the 1800s. Douglass, as a member of the Santo Domingo Commission appointed by President U.S. Grant, visited Key West in March 1871. The completely renovated building houses a gymnasium, stage, locker rooms, a small community classroom and the District 6 Commissioner's office. Additional plans to renovate the health clinic and community music classroom are underway.
