

ARC DE TRIOMPHE PARIS, FRANCE

IT'S THE WORLD'S SECOND LARGEST TRIUMPHAL ARCH.

At 164 feet high by 148 feet wide, it's the secondlargest triumphal arch standing today, and was the largest until 1982, when North Korea unveiled its Arch of Triumph.

CALDER – FOUR ARCHES

The iconic Gateway Arch — overlooking the Mississippi River from the St. Louis side — took almost a generation to build

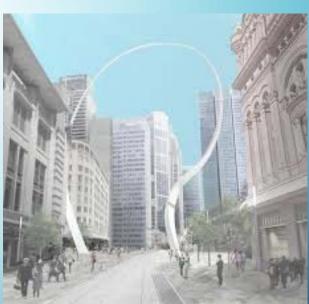

THE CLOUD SYDNEY AUSTRALIA

The Cloud evokes comfort, openness and freedom. Through freedom, it is connected to cloud computing which, in turn, links to the quality of 'Connected City' so important to Sydney.

Junya Ishigami, 2014

CLASSIC – ICONIC ENTRY

METROZOO ENTRANCE

Colorful bicycles create a welcoming and playful
gateway into the park
and zoo entrance

BAHAMA VILLAGE

ARCHWAY KEY WEST

Historic and to scale within the neighborhood

Queen's University Kingston, Ontario Bronze, classic and difficult to determine size and scope

FLORAL ARCHWAY

ARTIST: JOE TYLER

ARIZONA

ANTLER ARCHES TOWN SQUARE JACKSON HOLE, WYOMING

ARTIST: GRANT ORDELHEIDE

The four elk antler arches guarding the corners of Jackson Hole's George Washington Memorial Park, more commonly called the Town Square, have become well known icons to the town's many visitors. They've been featured in thousands of family photos over the years.

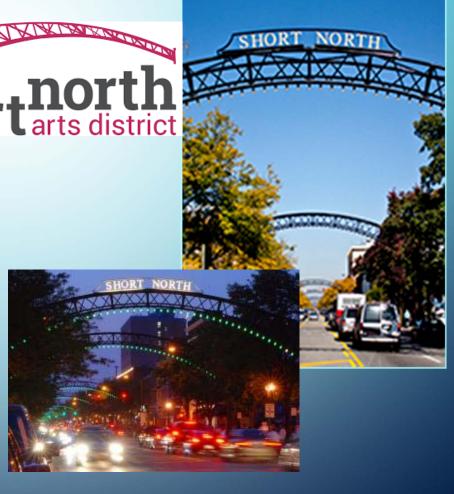

LANCASTER, PENNSYLVANIA

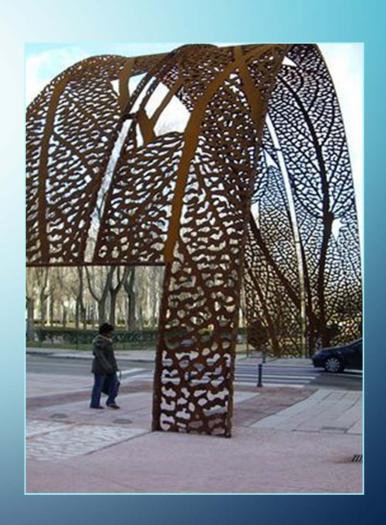

SHORT NORTH COLUMBUS, OHIO

One of the most recognizable parts of the Short North Arts known as "Arch City." Ohio was chosen to host the centennial celebration of the creation of the Northwest Territory since it was the first state carved out of the territory. The wooden arches were lit by gaslight and had been built to both light the streets and dazzle visitors. In 1896, the wood and gas was replaced with steel and electric, but in 1916 the arches were torn down entirely and replaced by light posts. In 2002, almost 100 years later, 17 steel arches were reinstalled on High Street from Goodale to Fifth Avenue and are a hallmark of the Short North Arts District. The individually-programmable lights, which use LED technology, create a bright rainbow along the mile stretch of High Street that is the District.

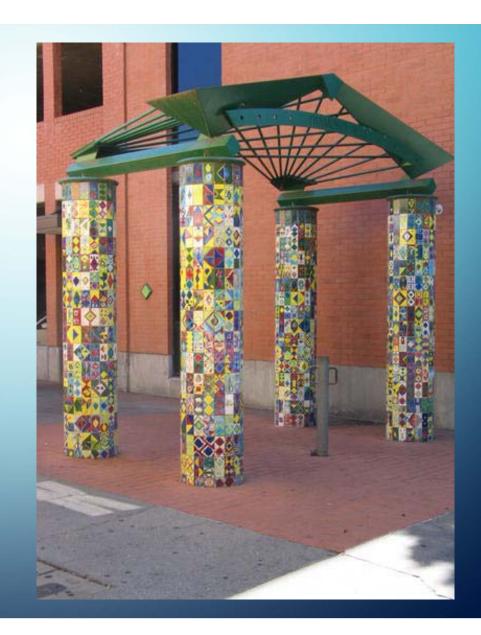

METAL LACE ROADWAY ARCH ARTIST: JUANJO NOVELLA

DIAMOND ALLEY ARCHES

Chico, California

3,000 tiles were painted by local school children, and artists Kathleen Nartuhi and David Barta used the tiles to create this installation.

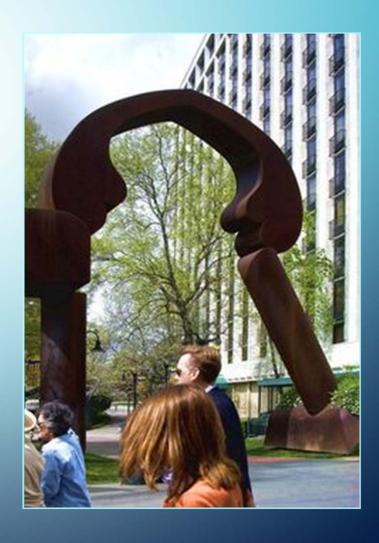

MIAMI, FLORIDA
GOVERNMENT AND COURTHOUSE CENTER

RHYTHM OF THE TRAIN ARTIST: JOAN LEHMAN

INDO ARCH - SACRAMENTO CA

in Sacramento trails Chicago's by only a decade or so, stretching back to 1977 when the city created its Art in Public Places program. That year, Sacramento State art instructor Gerald Walburg won a design competition for a piece demarcating the junction between the west side of Downtown Plaza and the pathway leading to Old Sacramento. By 1979, the five pieces of Cor-Ten steel that compose Walburg's Indo Arch took their spot amid howls of disapproval near the intersection of 4th and K streets.

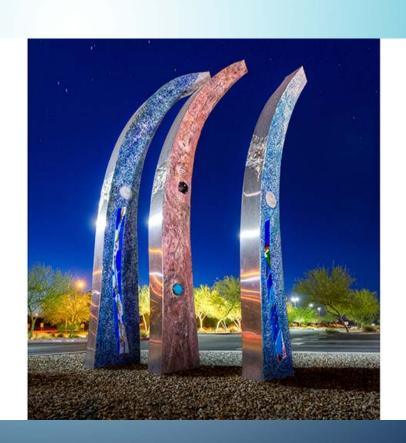

ARCH - NORTHBRIDGE, WESTERN AUSTRALIA

Contemporary

Stylish example of etched stainless steel and lighting

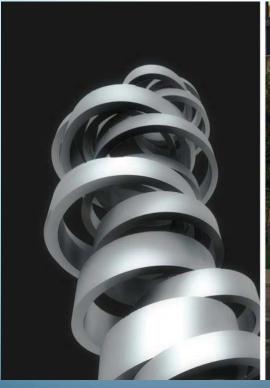

Historic entrance of the iconic New York-Presbyterian Hospital.

While being visually unstable, the two towers maintain their internal stability. Life is fragile and vulnerable, yet strong and resilient. Life is about finding that unique balance between inner and outer forces that unfold during our existence.

With this work, I explore this dynamic tension. The visual unbalance, contrasted against the structural stability of the sculptures' body, invites viewers to reflect on the balance we strive to achieve in nearly all aspects of life.

LIFE PAINTED STAINLESS STEEL

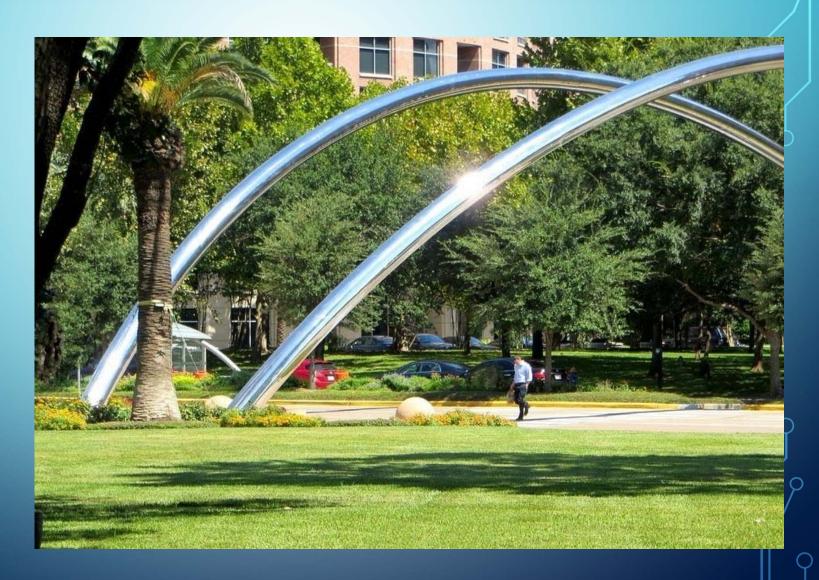

THE BASKET Napa, California artist: Gordon Huether

A way finding element for the hotel's entrance – 22 feet and illuminated at night made from woven aluminum bands and dichroic glass. An homage to Native American basketry, left unfinished to express that a community is never complete – constantly evolving and honoring past, present and future

UPTOWN
ARCHES
HOUSTON

JAMES SIMON – GATEWAY
SCULPTURES
TAMPA - $303,000

ARTIST: MARC FOURNES

David Dahlquist - Welcome to Port Everglades Port Everglades- $252,000

