RE: Administrative Hearing for 1301 1st Street

FROM: Karen DeMaria, City of Key West Urban Forestry Manager

On October 22, 2018, an Administrative Hearing notice was sent to Charles Wicht, new owner of 1301 1st Street, regarding the improper trimming of (1) Gumbo Limbo, (1) Strangler Fig, and (1) Green Buttonwood tree located along the rear property line. Several large diameter branches were cut on the tree which required a heavy maintenance trimming permit (no permit has been applied for or issued).

On August 31, 2018, a prospective buyer (not Mr. Wicht) requested some information regarding the trees on the property. A site visit was done on September 7, 2018 which document the conditions of the trees on the property. On October 12, 2018, a large pile of vegetative debris was observed on the right of way. An inspection was done which documented that the trees had been improperly trimmed and not permit had been issued. A gentleman onsite at the time claimed he did the work to remove the branches from the roof area.

There are actually (2) Gumbo limbo trees that have been improperly trimmed with one tree having had more than 30% of its canopy removed. One strangler fig and one Green Buttonwood tree have had more than 30% of their canopy removed with improper cuts (location and tears).

Recommendation: The property owner must hire a certified arborist to create and submit a plan to ensure the future health of the trees. It is anticipated that any corrective work will require a time frame of a few years as it is not recommended any additional trimming be done at this time. The property owner should also be fined.
