Karen, We had Holtcamp Constuction remove more of the flooring to expose a clearer view of the root system affecting the home. After further examination we have discovered 4 large main roots causing structural damage. With this recent observation I am not comfortable cutting 50% of the support roots back to the main stem without causing serious dieback and most importantly structural support to the entire tree. For these reasons I'm supporting the removal of this tree.

Respectively

John Cole
